NATIONAL WILD TURKEY FEDERATION

BANQUET AUCTION PACKAGE

NWTF: Hunt. Conserve. Share.

It's more than just hunting. It's a lifestyle — a love for the outdoors and a passion to see future generations carry on the tradition. Each year, thousands of NWTF members and volunteers flock to banquet halls and civic centers across North America to share stories, a meal and common goals — conserving wildlife and protecting our hunting heritage.

In this year's package, you'll find exciting new products, as well as classics like the famed NWTF Gun of the Year on page 7. These products allow our members to bring their outdoor lifestyle indoors... right into their living room. So take a look, enjoy this year's selection, and gear up for a new year of NWTF Hunting Heritage banquets.

1990-2010 STAMP FRAME

▼ “Turkey Country” by Ryan Kirby

Adorn your wall with some of the finest wild turkey art the Federation has commissioned in the past two decades. This year’s painting is by Ryan Kirby, former Junior Duck Stamp Artist and, now, one of the NWTF’s own graphic artists. A gobbler and his wary hens stand in cut corn just after fly-down. The matted and framed piece measures 23½ inches by 22 inches.

ARTIST OF THE YEAR PRINT

▲ “Riverside Pursuit” by Adam Smith

Who knows what’s next on this mountain lion’s menu? The secret lies with this year’s artist of the year Adam Smith. Born in Minnesota in 1984 and moved to Montana when he was 9, Smith was raised in the world of wildlife art. His father, artist Daniel Smith, often had mounts, skins and wildlife references scattered around the studio. His home, nestled in the woods at the base of a mountain, offers frequent visits from elk, moose and mountain lions. “Nature is part of who we are as a family,” Smith said. Auction Order #22

RONALD LOWERY

Blending the latest in metal processing technologies and the eye of a fine artist, Montana's Ronald Lowery creates what one art critic calls "some of the most refreshingly pure and finely executed wildlife sculptures produced today." From initial conception and preliminary sketches to the final touches of colorful, perfectly blended patinas, Lowery personally performs each complex, delicate step of his bronze sculptures, so he can make sure that the finished sculpture is true to his original vision. A former taxidermist, Lowery's thorough knowledge of wildlife anatomy enhances the authenticity of his works, widely known for their accuracy and life-like qualities.

REMINGTON 1100 G3

REMINGTON 1100 G3

2010 NWTF Gun of the Year

Whether in the turkey woods, on the dove field or in a display case, the 2010 Gun of the Year melds utility with design to create a functioning work of art.

Elegant stocks contrast with the polished blue of this 20-gauge Remington 1100 G3. Elaborate roll-engraving on the receiver celebrates spring by featuring a gold-enhanced strutting tom on the left side with the NWTF's classic seal on the right.

The Model 1100 G3 takes an American favorite to a new level of function and incorporates features that enhance the gas-operating system, reduce wear and improve cleaning. Starting with the solid carbon steel receiver, the G3 wears a Titanium PVD (Physical Vapor Deposition) coating, providing an attractive, yet durable finish. All internal operating parts are honed, nickel-plated and treated with a Teflon coating. Other improvements include a pressure-compensated, 26-inch ribbed barrel, which enables the use of light 2³/₄-inch target loads interchangeably with heavier 3-inch magnum loads. The Realwood semi-fancy carbon-fiber-laminate stocks feature a high-gloss finish and modern, stylized machine-cut checkering, and are strong enough to withstand even the toughest days in the field.

ERIC AND VALERIE CARLSON

Since 1995, Eric and Valerie Carlson, owners of Wilderness Mint, have shared their love of the outdoors through custom jewelry. Both grew up surrounded by natural beauty — Eric in Alaska, Valerie on the Oregon coast — and living off the land. “We believe selecting and creating jewelry that represents some of God’s best natural designs is a way to share some of how Eric and I were raised and how we want to raise our sons,” said Valerie.

The National Wild Turkey Federation is a private, non-profit conservation and education organization founded in 1973 with a mission dedicated to conserving wild turkeys and preserving the hunting tradition.

The NWTF's more than 400,000 members and volunteers, along with its wildlife agency and corporate partners, has restored and managed North America's current population of more than 7 million wild turkeys. In addition, the NWTF has aided in acquiring or improving habitat on nearly 14 million acres of public, private and corporate lands.

Through its outreach programs, the NWTF family has helped thousands of children, women and people with disabilities across North America learn new outdoor skills. The NWTF's JAKES, Women in the Outdoors and Wheelin' Sportsmen programs have taught people to better enjoy the outdoors as well as helped them understand the importance of wildlife management and appreciate hunting as an honorable pursuit.
